

Meet the OutCast

Written by Bob Snyder
24. 04. 2008

The name conjures images from the TV show “Survivor,” and indeed the OutCast is a survivor: it can survive all-weather outdoors. A weather-resistant speaker with a wireless iCast transmitter (tailored to needs of iPod owners.), OutCast is designed to work up to 10 hours on a built-in, rechargeable battery.

It features a 8” down-firing woofer and four high frequency drivers in an omni-directional array with a 100w digital amp and Soundcast receiver. There’s an input jack for MP3 players in case guests want to play their music at your party.

Go OutCast