

NuVo is Wire-Free at ISE

Written by Marco Attard
05. 02. 2013

Of the three multiroom audio systems at the NuVo Technologies ISE 2013 stand, two make use of the company's recently launched Wireless Audio System, promising high-fidelity audio with an easier set up.

According to the company representatives on the stand, setting up the two systems for the show took all of four hours, give or take a few minutes.

The NuVo Wireless System is scaleable, and allows one to build one zone at a time through either the P100 or P200 wireless players. Operating at either 40W (P100) or 120W (P200), the players amplify sound while acting as source devices, with streaming online radio and network-stored media library access.

The P200 also has built-in aptX Bluetooth connectivity, while control comes through wireless iOS and Android device apps.

Also on show at ISE 2013 is a fully-equipped wired Concerto system complete with Music Port server, AM/FM tuner, touchpads and in-wall speakers.

NuVo is Wire-Free at ISE

Written by Marco Attard
05. 02. 2013

The now traditional NuVo competition also made a return-- despite being no longer affiliated with former owners Hanser, the company still gave away a B.C. Rich guitar at the end of each day of the show.

Go NuVo at ISE 2013