Written by Marco Attard
26. 07. 2016

Owners of Sonos audio systems making use of the Plex media manager get some good news--the latest Sonos app can access Plex music libraries for playback on the wireless speakers.

Plex on Sonos runs like any streaming service, and shows up in the Sonos app once the user links accounts. The tie-in also involves remote access to Plex server files, allowing one to play their music on any Sonos speaker anywhere.

Another feature is "sonic fingerprinting" promising to automatically create a "beautifully organised" music library.

The service is currently in public beta, and is available the Sonos Labs section of the app.

Go Plex and Sonos: Better Together