

IKEA Sonos-Powered Speakers Hit the Market

Written by Frederick Douglas
05. 08. 2019

Swedish furniture retailer IKEA announces the availability of the first results of its partnership with Sonos-- specifically the Symfonisk-brand shelf speaker and table lamp/speaker combo.

First launched at Milan Design Week 2019 , the Symfonisk audio ranged is designed to "democratise the home sound system." Like other Sonos speakers, the Symfonisk offerings support wifi and AirPlay 2 connectivity, and pair with both the wider Sonos ecosystem and, in case of the table lamp/speaker, the IKEA Tradfri connected light bulb system.

The bookshelf speaker comes in white or black, and can be used either placed on any piece of furniture or mounted on a wall (and turned into a shelf) through an additional bracket. Customers can also pair two speakers to create a stereo setup. Meanwhile the table lamp comes in black or white, and offers audio capabilities comparable to the Sonos Play:1 speaker, if one with an additional handy light source.

As mentioned earlier, the IKEA Symfonisk speakers are available now.

Go IKEA Symfonisk