

Cineak Motorises the Headrest

Written by Marco Attard
10. 01. 2012

Cineak says the key to comfort in movie watching while sitting in a reclined or inclined position is a motorised headrest, providing proper neck support while viewing the screen.

Most Cineak seating products already have articulated headsets, but now the company offers the feature as a motorised option-- allowing the viewer to adjust the headrest forward or backwards at the push of a button.

The motorised headrest is available on Nero and Fortuny seats, with a control button in either black or silver.

Go Cineak Home Theatre Seating

Watch Cineak Motorised Headrest