Just Add Software and Global Caché Team Up

Written by Marco Attard
11. 02. 2015

Networking device maker Global Caché announces a partnership with control software developer Just Add Software at ISE 2015, one allowing the easy integration of Just Add Software products with Global Caché hardware.

Global Caché products connect almost any electrical device to wifi or IP networks, allowing for control, automation or management via network-based software. Its networking products are aimed for the control and automation markets and also include IR learners, IR blasters, sensors, receivers and conversion cables.

Another Global Caché offering is Control Tower, a cloud-based IR database.

Meanwhile Just Add Software is the company behind MediaSwitcher, InstallerPro and MoreVue. It is best know for its partnership with Just Add Power, the maker of HD over IP distribution products.

"Just Add Software, with their excellent line up of software products and close partnership to Just Add Power, is a great partner for us, and an excellent addition that will significantly benefit our dealer/installer channel," Global Caché says. "Just Add Software, which provides easy to use configuration and control capabilities to Just Add Power, is widely used by our channel."

Go Just Add Software and Global Caché Form Partnership