

Watching YouTube on TV Gets Easier

Written by Marco Attard
08. 01. 2013

Back in November 2012 YouTube mobile apps got an update allowing easy pairing of Android devices with Google TV STBs, Apple Airplay-style. Now Google extends such wireless pairing to "smart" TVs at CES 2013.

Initially available on Google-friendly Sony, LG, Panasonic and Bang & Olufsen TVs, the feature will eventually roll out to devices from other vendors such as Philips, Samsung, Sharp, Toshiba and Western Digital.

The update also includes the latest YouTube on TV look and feel, with 1080p videos and a slick UI.

Expect more Google TV announcements to emerge as CES 2013 trundles on...

Go Turning Your Phone and Tablet into the Best Remote for YouTube \(Official YouTube Blog\)