

Loewe Goes Art Deco With Bild 9

Written by Marco Attard
11. 05. 2017

Loewe announces an Art Deco-inspired UHD OLED TV-- the Bild 9, designed Loewe London-based creative director Bodo Sperlein to channel a classic 1920s look.

Featuring a Bauhaus-style design complete with geometric shapes and material, the Bild 9 comes on a solid steel frame in either Amber Gold or Graphite Gray. The actual TV panel is just 7mm thick, and all cabling feeds through the frame while fabric covers the connection ports.

Connectivity comes through x4 HDMI and x4 USB ports, together with wifi and Bluetooth wireless. An integrated HDD adds 1TB of storage, while audio comes through an integrated 120W soundbar and a Dolby 5.1 decoder. Support for HDR10, HLG broadcast HDR and Dolby Vision come as standard.

The Bild 9 comes in 55- and 65-inch sizes with either wall-mount, table-stand or floor-stand options. Customers wanting to add speakers with a matching aesthetic get the Klang 9, a pair of column speakers with integrated subwoofer.

Go Loewe Bild 9