Panasonic Out of the Red (Not Thanks to TV)

Written by Marco Attard
31. 07. 2012

Panasonic is back in the black in Q1 2012, following its largest-ever 2011 losses-- through cost cutting measures the company records $$ 163.7$ million net profits despite a $-6 \%$ Y-o- Y decline in group sales.

However Panasonic does not attribute any success to its bleeding TV division, as Q1 2012 Plasma sales fall by $-47 \%$ Y-o-Y. Back in 2011 Panasonic spent nearly $$ 11$ billion to write-down losses from massive investments in plasma display factories and early retirement payments.

BD recorder and player sales drop by $-60 \%$ Y-o-Y, while the Panasonic products segments (including PCs) makes nearly $$ 64.6$ billion in profits.

Other profitable segments for the company include industrial goods, including solar panels and rechargeable automobile batteries.

New Panasonic president Kazuhiro Tsuga says he is conducting a "strategic review" of every part of the company-- pledging to pull out of loss-making or low-profit businesses in favour of more investment in the profitable energy business.

Go Panasonic Reports Q1 2012 Results

Go Panasonic Returns to Profit (WSJ.com)

Written by Marco Attard
31. 07.2012

