

CEDIA Executive Director to Step Down

Written by Marco Attard
22. 10. 2014

CEDIA executive director Don Gilpin will step down as leader of the industry association by end 2015. The CEDIA board announces the search for a replacement begins immediately.

Gilpin has been with CEDIA since 1998, and became executive director and COO in 2006.

“After considerable thought and discussions with CEDIA’s Executive Committee, I felt next year would be the right time to leave,” Gilpin says. “When I came to CEDIA, 17 years ago as the Director of CEDIA EXPO, I could not have imagined the incredible run I would have and the wonderful people I met over the years.”

Gilpin adds CEDIA has had 3 solid years of recovery following the recession, and expects the association to grow further during the next year. Under his tenure CEDIA Expo grew to be a top 100 tradeshow in America, while the association expanded into numbers countries outside the US.

Go CEDIA Executive Director to Step Down by End of 2015