

T&T Automation Takes Three (Three Awards)

Written by Bob Snyder
07. 10. 2009

T&T Automation walks away from the 2009 CEDIA Electronic Lifestyles Awards with no fewer than three accolades, including the prestigious 2009 Best Integrated Home Overall Winner. (Photo: Tony Harper and Carl Ambrus.)

The awards were given at the CEDIA US Expo in recognition of their work on residential properties in North America. T&T, with offices in both the UK and British Columbia, won the Level III Gold Technical Design Award ($216,000-$260,000), the Level X Gold Technical Design Award ($1,400,001+) and was named the 2009 Best Integrated Home Overall Winner for their residential custom installation projects in Canada.

T&T's Canadian division as the branch has only been established for a mere two years, and is already being recognised for their projects.

CEDIA Chairman, Robert Hallam added "It's great to see a CEDIA Region 1 member doing so well across the pond! We have always known that our members set the benchmark for quality, both nationally and internationally, and it is great to have their considerable achievements recognised in this way."

Go The Winning Project