D-Tools announces the latest version of the System Integrator (SI) software platform-- SI 2016, adding over 50 productivity features and enhancements within the robust D-Tools Cloud infrastructure.

According to the company the additions make it aster and easier than ever for residential and commercial AV, higher education and security installers, consultants, tech managers and systems designers to perform key functions of their business, namely estimation, system design and project management.

Enhancements include integration with SupplyStream and QuickBooks Online, purchase order management and number improvements to reporting, scheduling and Mobile Install. Drawing also gets updated with off-page reference capabilities in Visio and new cable tray shapes for easier equipment room design and layouts.

SI 2016 is available free of charge for customers participating in the D-Tools Software Assurance programs, and the company offers both a free demo and a 30-day free trial.
